

The mission of Harnett Regional Water is to provide the highest quality of water and wastewater services to the citizens of Harnett County and the surrounding region at the most economical cost while promoting conservation and protecting the environment. HRW is a regional water and wastewater utility that provides service to approximately 125,000 people in Harnett County and the surrounding Cape Fear region.

HRW through its Harnett County Regional Water Treatment Plant, located in the County seat of Lillington, has 42 million gallons per day of treatment capacity and supplies water to the municipalities of Lillington, Angier, Erwin and Coats in Harnett County, Fort Bragg, Linden and Spring Lake in Cumberland County, and Holly Springs and Fuquay-Varina in Wake County. Harnett also supplies water to Johnston and Moore Counties. The Harnett County Regional Water Plant utilizes the Cape Fear River as the source for the system's drinking water. HRW currently has 2 active wastewater treatment plants with over 22 million gallons per day of treatment capacity that serve approximately 60,000 people in Harnett and Wake County as well as Fort Liberty.

Harnett Regional Water's revenues are generated entirely from the sale, treatment and/or availability of water and sewer. Water and sewer user charges are intended to recover costs associated with operations, maintenance, equipment replacement and capital improvements.

How do I check for a leak?

Get a reading off of your water meter. Refrain from water use for 4 hours then take another reading. If the reading has changed and no water was used, then a leak is present. It is the customer's responsibility to make repairs on their side. One leak adjustment can be given per 12 months on one bill with proper proof of repair.
